Educate the parents, get the ball rolling

TIRRED OF HAVING TO STAND UP in assembly? Tired of being pushed around in halls that are too crowded? Tired of having to suffer from restrictions brought on by the crowded conditions?

Well, you can do something about it and educate your parents at the same time.

You know about the crowded conditions, the inadequate classroom space, but do your parents know? They need to know about it because they are the ones who will have to vote on March 19.

As a matter of fact, your parents should know the facts. And they can be here by coming to a meeting Monday night in the junior cafeteria.

NOW, AS A CITIZEN of this school you have the duty of letting this meeting be well attended, with your parents being there. We have had some fine meetings here before next year should find it their obligation to the school, community and country to see that their parents are there, for then we will be voting in March 19 election.

So learn how hard the Citizenship Education Project students work, no matter how many radio programs they broadcast, and how many articles they write, it will not make equal the publicity you can give to your cause.

HOW? BY JUST going home and telling your parents about this. And how despairing the situation is, and persuading them, and your neighbors to vote for the eight-mill increase.

And again, if your parents believe you are exaggerating, tell them of the meeting being held next Monday night in the auditorium. This is your chance to get the facts they’re afraid of!—C.G.

Four-pointers say

When the going is rough just stay in there and fight

...that’s the way you do it.

SO...that’s the way they do it.

For 41 students in FHS made straight A’s last semester and about 160 didn’t we decided to try to find out how it is done. And, to satisfy our curiosity, we interrupted some of those 44 at their books long enough to quiz them on the subject.

And most of all, if your parents believe you are exaggerating, tell them of the meeting being held next Monday night in the auditorium. Warning: This is your chance to get the facts they’re afraid of!—C.G.

Here is the tale of them for whom the bell tolls

...we hear it every day

For one reason or another, the bell has rung. Like the clicking of the fingers. It rings in clear, copper-tipped bells. The school is a stage in the Cafeteria. We are the actors. You’re the audience, you. If you listen carefully, you can hear the dialogue inside. The actors make the noise, the class can get to work.

But the bell is not by itself. We will always have his counterpart at the beginning of the fifth hour. He is the Cafeteria Custodian. He takes the stage in the Cafeteria and talks while everyone else eats. When the class is over, all, if munch his lunch. He always makes his class, but just a little late.

And then there are Haskell students. They have a way of walking, standing and usually just stand around the corner of the corridor. After the sound of the bell and one more rapturous look, they dash off in opposite directions.

The one we like best is good looking. And he’s got it. He’s not bad to look at his, that’s for sure.

And another fellow who seems to be absent-minded Andrew. His intentions are good, but he can’t remember the combination of his locker. He wrote the combination on his hand and then left his notebook in his locker.omnia. You can’t have a new face and new faces will still be at the same old places, as the ball tells us.

Eagar beaver

Bernie Lappin: "Boy, did I study in waiting in lunch lines? English at 10 p.m. and didn’t eat until 12:15 a.m. Miss Nora Brown: "Is that so?"

But it makes good conversation!

Speed demon

Ann Eubanks (to Bill Backler): "How fast do you type, Bill?"

Bill: "Oh, about 65 words a minute.

Ann: "No, 65? I thought you were over 100.

Bill: "Oh, no. 60 words a minute.

Jerris Scudder

"Wow! just look at that big red Buick Reiner over there. I never saw one before.

Jerry Ney: "Well, there’s not much else he can do with it, is there?"

Bless those sloths

Coach Steed White was trying to win a big noontime meet as his first aid class when Nancy Howard bolted up.

"Oh, see, "wheezing," is just an overdose of dreams.

Dum-dum-dum-dum

Emma Shirley and Pat White were watching a recent film. While sitting at the theatre Emma (in dramatic voice): "My, what cute pictures."

Pat: "Just like my pal Joe."

Nita Barlow: "Can who I be?"

"You can be Saturday, we are April 1.

Briskly now

Miss Jenkins: "Earl, do you have your assignment?"

Earl Fortune: "Shakes his head no."

Miss Jenkins: "Well, let us at least have our head with a little more concerns.

The GRIZZLY

Published bi-weekly by the journalism students of Fort Smith High School, February 17, 1955

EDITORIAL

Editorial Director: Cathie Griffin

Assistant Editor: Arnold C. Reynolds

Features Editor: J. P. Peterson

Sports Editor: Ralph Porter

Business Manager: J. M. Brown

Business Manager: J. H. Brown

ARTS & ENTERTAINMENT

Editor: Carole Crockett

Features: Dorothy Williams

Sports: John Anderson

Business Manager: J. H. Brown

BUSINESS

PREFERRED

Printing

Shop foreman: John Johnson

Office foreman: Mike Brown

Matte: Joseph Nance

Pressmen: Ralph Porter, Jeff Leary, Bob Goodwin

Pressers: virginia Hampton, Betty Bristow

Stripers: Bob Goodwin

Ink: Mike Brown

Copy: Mike Brown

Editorial

Taste: Rich Hazzard

Features: Mike Brown

Sports: Bill Backler

Business Manager: J. M. Brown

EDITORIAL

by Louise Turner

were getting on the soapbox when this issue hit the stands and in the handwriting of the Grizzly BASKETBALL team. The next letter from that body were half as peppery as the first one. We have more ERP than Kellogg’s.

"What’s in a name?" we asked with Shakespeare. Sometimes a person’s name is more than a letter. MRS. EVELYN HOLT, dramatists for the Grizzlies, brought in an invoice for a certain sly ash. "Oh, he was a man of his word."

Another call-on counter is CAROLE CROCKETT, who says: "I may not be the best all-around girl in school, but I bet I’m the busiest."

MRS. LELLE EVITTS, while listening to the boys’ basketball practice the roasting “Ain’t Going to War Day’s always chic. I wish they would hurry up and sing a peace tune.”

JANE DAVIDSON, telling one of her comrades about her date in a certain ash. "Oh, he kept one arm on the steering wheel and the other out the window."

ANE is a dance in the hole. The GRIZZLIES are having it at a certain dance. "We’ll have to leave this one.

It happens everyday,

just miss it

by Louie Turner

were getting on the soapbox when this issue hit the stands and in the handwriting of the Grizzly BASKETBALL team. The next letter from that body were half as peppery as the first one. We have more ERP than Kellogg’s.

"What’s in a name?" we asked with Shakespeare. Sometimes a person’s name is more than a letter. MRS. EVELYN HOLT, dramatists for the Grizzlies, brought in an invoice for a certain sly ash. "Oh, he was a man of his word."

Another call-on counter is CAROLE CROCKETT, who says: "I may not be the best all-around girl in school, but I bet I’m the busiest."

MRS. LELLE EVITTS, while listening to the boys’ basketball practice the roasting “Ain’t Going to War Day’s always chic. I wish they would hurry up and sing a peace tune.”

JANE DAVIDSON, telling one of her comrades about her date in a certain ash. "Oh, he kept one arm on the steering wheel and the other out the window."

SMITHS are having it at a certain dance. "We’ll have to leave this one.

The Springtime is getting closer and the S.A.Q. is getting in their spring merchandise. If you think you might be interested in it, you can see us Easter early, we will come around the block and be your salesmen to show you our spring merchandise. If you get it now and use our lay away plan, it will cost you much easier it on the pocket book.

DORIS ANN RAGGERT was in the store the other day looking through our very fine selection of Damon and Adrian original and many original of the store are insuring a birthday, Doris Ann?"